PART E

TERMS OF REFERENCE & PROJECT BRIEF

I. BACKGROUND

Municipal entities play an important role in the South African electricity distribution and supply sector. Around 180 municipalities as well as the national utility Eskom are active in the distribution and supply of electricity. The distribution business is increasingly facing economic and technical problems. This is due to highly fragmented retail markets, aging infrastructure, underfinanced municipalities, regulatory uncertainty and sometimes difficulties in governance and institutional effectiveness. Many municipal utilities are also exposed to the challenges of growing urbanization, electricity theft, poverty, and tariff cross-subsidization.

Over the past few years, South Africa's electricity distribution industry has deteriorated and has contributed negatively to economic growth. In addition to appropriately investing in new electricity infrastructure, municipalities should also make appropriate funds available for the maintenance and refurbishment of existing assets to ensure reliable service provision.

In recent years, some municipalities have experienced technical problems and power outages due to failures in existing distribution lines and networks, rather than a failure in Eskom supply.

In addition, South Africa is currently experiencing unprecedented levels of energy shortages, and this has a negative impact on the economy. Supply of energy needs to improve significantly to be able to support the economic activity and growth across the country; it needs to be robust and extensive enough to meet industrial, commercial and household needs.

Older networks are being increasingly damaged by supply disruptions, leading to more frequent distribution failures.

Some of the reasons for the current state of municipal distribution infrastructure are:

- Most of the equipment is ageing, its unreliability is increasing as is the cost of repair and it needs to be replaced.
- Most equipment is overloaded, due to unplanned-for development in its area.
- Few municipalities have adequate planned or preventative maintenance programmes.
- Few municipalities have infrastructure asset databases, many rely on their corporate memory for their maintenance strategy, few have contingency arrangements and many lack adequate stocks of suitable spare parts.
- Insufficient provisions have been made for refurbishment of networks. Practice has in many cases been to rely on the overdesign of the past, but that capacity has now been eroded.

Ringfencing of electricity infrastructure: Section 27 of the Electricity regulation Amendment Act of 28 of 2007, (i) states that municipalities should keep separate financial statements, including balance sheet of the reticulation business. This is currently not the case with most municipalities where revenue from electricity sales is used to cross-subsidize other municipal services. There is therefore no ring fencing of the energy business resulting in most municipalities which contradicts Section 27 of the Electricity regulation Amendment Act of 28 of 2007 in that most municipalities are not able to determine the electricity income generated, expenditure, profit and losses.

The Department of Mineral Resources & Energy (DMRE) has approached DBSA to assist it with developing the ADAM programme.

The main ADAM Programme Components are:

Phase 1

Designing the ADAM programme, completing a comprehensive market assessment of the municipal electricity distribution sector and finally, identification of a list of pilot sites where one feasibility studies can be undertaken.

Phase 2

Subject to securing additional funding from DMRE, Phase 2 will involve the implementation of a PMO to capacitate municipalities to develop a pipeline of bankable feasibility studies for investment and to also possibly explore other models to assist municipalities with their distribution business. This phase will also develop a blended finance facility which can then attract private sector investment into this sector.

II. OBJECTIVES OF THE PROPOSED PROFESSIONAL SERVICES ASSIGNMENT

At present, most of the municipalities are not financially sustainable resulting in reduction of budgets available for the maintenance and refurbishment of existing municipal electricity distribution networks thereby contributing to the significant deterioration of these assets. Consequently, municipalities are unable to provide adequate electricity services, business sustainability and facilitating economic growth.

The key objective of the ADAM programme is thus to resolve concerns with municipal electrical distribution, infrastructure maintenance, restoration, and strengthening of electrical distribution infrastructure.

Phase 1 of the ADAM Programme will comprise two components being (i) designing the ADAM programme, and (ii) conducting bankable feasibility studies at two pilot sites which can then be positioned for blended finance solutions.

The detailed scope of work for the activities listed above is provided below.

III. SCOPE OF WORK

The purpose of this Terms of Reference is to procure the services of a team of consultants / advisors (professional service provider) that will be responsible for the design of the ADAM programme and to conduct bankable feasibility studies at one pilot site. The successful Professional Service Provider team will work with the DMRE & DBSA team to design the ADAM Programme.

Component 1 – Assess and summarize all previous work done in area of ADAM Component 2 – Conducting a market assessment of the Metros & Secondary Cities electricity distribution assets, with reference to identification of backlogs in maintenance, refurbishment and network strengthening.

Component 3 - Designing a National ADAM Programme that will support the preparation, financing and implementation of municipal distribution projects

Component 4 – Creating a financial environment to fund ADAM projects

Component 5 – Preparing a business case for ADAM Phase II

Component 6 – Preparing a bankable feasibility project which can then be funded using blended finance by crowding in private sector investment.

Component 7 – Conducting a Stakeholder Workshop

COMPONENT 1 - REVIEW OF PREVIOUS WORK DONE

Assess all previous work done in area of ADAM, including all work done by the previous EDI Holdings and the 'mini' ADAM pilot which was conducted by DMRE in 2014. This work will identify key lesson/findings which can then be used in the design of this ADAM programme.

Deliverable: A report summarizing key findings / lessons learnt from all previous work undertaken, including 'mini' ADAM which was implemented by DMRE in 2014.

COMPONENT 2 – MARKET ASSESSMENT OF ELECTRICITY DISTRIBUTIONS INFRASTRUCTURE

Detailed market study and needs assessment:

- i) Determine need and potential for ADAM programme
- ii) Assess and identify all the metros & secondary cities electricity distribution infrastructure. This should include but not limited to an inventory or all capex backlogs which could be funded through the ADAM programme
- iii) Project pipeline evaluation: identify projects for short term and medium term

Deliverable: Market and Need Assessment Report with fact sheets for all metros & secondary cities.

COMPONENT 3 - PROGRAMME DESIGN FOR PHASE II OF ADAM

The establishment and resourcing of a national ADAM Programme that will support municipalities to identify, prepare, finance and implement projects at scale. It is envisaged that this ADAM Programme will become the “one stop solution provider” or “center of excellence” for municipal distribution projects in the country (similar to the IPP Office established as part of the REIPP programme in SA).

The proposed establishment of an ADAM Programme for Phase II will include the following:

1. Programme implementation structure
 - a) Develop an ADAM programme implementation structure
 - Mandate and scope of the ADAM Programme
 - Staffing and Operational Plan
 - Describe the Programme implementation structure, outlining legal, contractual, institutional and financial arrangements between all the role players.

Deliverable: Report detailing implementation arrangements and implementation plan
2. Explore various models for rolling out and funding ADAM projects
 - Within the context of the legal environment, identify different operating models for rolling out ADAM projects. This would include municipal balance sheet funding, PPPs, Public Sector Participation (PSP) Model, etc.
 - Compare advantages and disadvantages between the municipal balance sheet, and other options

Deliverable: Report detailing various models including all assumptions to implement ADAM projects
3. Legal Due Diligence

Conduct legal due diligence, including regulation covering municipal electricity distribution, municipal finance and procurement. Identification of policy/regulatory barriers / hurdles that would create an enabling environment for ADAM

Deliverable: Report on Legal Diligence

COMPONENT 4 – CREATING AN ENABLING FINANCIAL, ENVIRONMENT & ALTERNATIVE FUNDING SOLUTIONS

1. Standardised financial, procurement and contracting model options:
 - a) In the case of municipal balance sheet, identify contracting and financing options with private service providers and additional considerations regarding financing including (i) programme NPV and impact on overall municipal cash flows, (ii) key municipal financial ratios, (iii) debt and maintenance reserve account requirements, (iv) ring fencing of savings and revenues and (v) other key conditions for financing
 - b) Develop efficient and effective procurement approaches that can be used for the programme
2. Explore and evaluate options on how to fund the rollout of Phase 2 of ADAM Programme, with the key emphasis on ensuring financial sustainability

3. Structuring the financial solution:
 - a) Explore possible sources of financing / funding, terms of such financing, credit enhancements, liquidity facilities including guarantee mechanisms, as well as modalities for deploying funding, amongst other areas.
 - b) Exploring blended finance models focusing on financing sources such as DFIs, MDBs, commercial financiers among other options.

Deliverable: A financial report detailing all above bullet points 1,2 & 3

COMPONENT 5 – BUSINESS CASE FOR ADAM PROGRAMME

Using all the above information in Components 1,2,3 & 4, to then develop a business case for the ADAM Programme.

Deliverable: Business Plan

COMPONENT 6 – PREPARING BANKABLE FEASIBILITY STUDIES

- 1) Develop criteria/parameters to identify projects that would qualify for project preparation funding
- 2) Using Excel, develop a prioritization tool with the identified criteria/parameters
- 3) Using the prioritization tool, identify a pipeline of projects in the short term, medium term and long term where investment can be targeted
- 4) Based on above, present a pipeline of projects where at least one bankable feasibility studies can be undertaken in the short term – this should either be refurbishment or network strengthening projects
- 5) Feasibility Study (FS)

FS is estimated to take approximately 15 months. The following reports form part of the FS:

 1. Draft Feasibility Report
 2. Final Draft Feasibility Report, and
 3. Final Feasibility Report.

The feasibility report should entail studies pertaining to at a minimum (but not limited to):

- Technical viability
- Market studies
- Environmental assessment
- Financial modelling and analysis
- Economic assessment
- Social impact assessment
- Institutional (including the proposed project structure
- Operation and Maintenance Forecast
- Legal Framework; and
- Risk Assessment and possible mitigation

Some of the areas for consideration in the feasibility study are:

A. TECHNICAL STUDIES

a. System Study Scope of Work

The scope of work for the system studies is as follows in the context of refurbishment or strengthening of the network:

- Data collections and preparation
- Baseline network model
- Network evaluation:
 - ✓ Steady state studies
 - ✓ Fault level analysis
 - ✓ Dynamic and Transient stability studies; and
 - ✓ Frequency stability studies.
- Sensitivity analysis

- Cost estimation and
- Project viability analysis.

b. Data collections and preparation

The advisory team should prepare a list of information and data required for the Project system study, the time within which it will be required and the likely sources of data. The data required would include (but not be limited to) items such as:

- Annual network modifications and additions
- Recorded network loading at time of system peak and light loading conditions
- Available future electricity demand/supply projections
- Available future generation and transmission expansion plans
- All relevant reports, models and supporting material of studies including technical, environmental, economic and financial analysis carried out to date by the municipality.

c. Baseline network model

The municipality to provide the latest updated network models for the relevant year(s) of study (for short term, medium term) and long term. The advisory team will conduct the studies utilizing a power systems analysis software suite. The municipality should advise which software will be used for the load flow and dynamic studies, which should be compatible with the municipality's in-house software for operation.

The advisory team will reconfigure the baseline model to take into account any changes in assumptions related to the base/starting year of the studies which may require changes in the model in respect of:

- Loading levels
- Generation pattern (taking into account new generation projects)
- New transmission projects and
- Power wheeling requirements determined by the economic study.

Prepare additional network models at 5-year intervals to cover the planning horizon as stated in the studies.

d. Existing network evaluation

Assess the current state of the network in terms of the following

- How reliable (security and adequacy) is the network of the municipality?
- Should anything be done to the existing network to make them more reliable?
- What is the current network transfer limit?
- What is the steady-state power transfer constraint?
- What is the transient/dynamic power system constraint?

e. Proposed network evaluation in the context of refurbishment or strengthening of the network:

Assess the future state of the network in terms of the following;

- How reliable (security and adequacy) will the network of the municipality be?
- Should anything be done to the network to make it more reliable?
- Which areas may have steady-state power transfer constraints?
- Which areas may have transient/dynamic power system constraints?
- With the future expected/planned generation, how can the network be optimally designed to facilitate the municipality's/ national main objective?

f. Steady state studies

Based on the revised/reconfigured models, the advisory team should conduct steady state studies to determine the steady state limits. The steady state transfer limits will be conducted for the range of contingencies agreed with the municipality for the worst-case loading conditions and the worst-case generation patterns.

g. Assess network wheeling capacity in the context of refurbishment or strengthening of the network:

The TA should establish the network wheeling capacity. The TA should also determine whether additional network capacity to allow for wheeling on top of the base case load requirements will be available.

h. Fault level studies

Three phase fault level studies should be conducted according to the standard to determine the expected fault level rating of the impacted substations within the network.

i. Transient stability studies

Transient stability studies should be performed for the worst-case scenarios identified under the steady state studies. This should be done for the base year and for the 5 yearly intervals comprising the planning horizon of the study.

j. Frequency stability studies

Frequency studies should be conducted for the worst-case scenarios identified under the steady state studies.

k. Selection of technically preferred solution to optimise the network

List the infrastructure required to optimally operate the network in order of priority.

l. Cost estimation in the context of refurbishment or strengthening of the network:

The advisory team should prepare estimates of the capital costs of the infrastructure comprising the required infrastructure to optimise the network. The cost estimates will be based on bills of quantities derived from the substation layouts, single line diagrams and configurations. The level of detail of the bills of quantities will be selected by the advisory team so as to be consistent with obtaining a feasibility level cost estimate.

Uncertainty in the cost estimates should be dealt with as part of the sensitivity analysis of the financial analysis. The costs should be provided at an agreed reference date. The costs should include equipment, transport, materials and installation costs. The cost estimates should be used for purposes of establishing the viability of the project.

m. Project viability analysis

As part of the project viability analysis, the advisory team should provide a financial analysis and a cost/benefit analysis on the project to assess the viability of the project i.e. system improvements in the context of refurbishment or strengthening of the network; from the perspective of the potential off-taker i.e. assess whether the project presents a net benefit to the end-users and municipality.

n. Planning Criteria

All technical limits will be as per the Grid Codes of the municipality should be adhered to.

B. FINANCIAL ASSESSMENT

A Value Assessment Report will assist the municipality to determine the following;

- Can the risk associated with the Project be sufficiently transferred to Private Sector who is better positioned to manage it?
- Does the project provide Value for Money?
- Is the project affordable?

Value For Money Analysis - should include (but not be limited to) an assessment of the following;

- Part 1: Determine the type of value-for-money assessment
- Part 2: Construct the Base PSC Model
- Part 3: Construct the risk-adjusted PSC Model
- Part 4: Construct the external reference model
- Part 5: Qualitative considerations
- Part 6: Sensitivity analysis

Affordability Analysis

Affordability relates to whether the cost of the project over the whole project life can be accommodated in the government's budget, given its existing commitments.

'Affordable' refers to the ability of the public body to meet any financial commitment incurred with implementing the project from its existing or future budgetary funds. It is possible that the Project may not be affordable, although it illustrates Value for Money.

Therefore, the affordability test may involve (but not limited to the following);

- Determine the budget available for the Project
- Compare the risk-adjusted external reference model with the available budget
- Advise on alternative revenue sources that can be explored by the municipality
- The Financial Model must consider the potential revenue that can be generated from the sale of by-products or alternative revenue sources in assessing the Project's affordability.

All financial models must be presented and explained in a format that is usable by the municipality with all assumptions and scenario testing. All financial models must be in Excel format, and clearly set out all assumptions made; sensitivity analysis carried out and model outputs. The financial models must be sufficiently adaptable for use by others at later stages.

The first step for carrying out the affordability test would be based on several assumptions to estimate the cost of the project by using the output specifications for the selected option. All direct and indirect costs as well as third party revenues should be included in the estimate. The affordability test would require assessing the financial implication of the project cost to the municipality. If affordability cannot be demonstrated, the project would either need to be shelved or the output specifications be modified to meet the affordability test.

C. ECONOMIC ASSESSMENT

To develop a Cost Benefit Analysis (CBA) to comply with the requirements of the National Treasury's Budget Facility for Infrastructure (BFI). The socio-economic analysis as required by the BFI, provides information that enables the assessment of welfare changes and estimation of the Project's impact on all segments of the society via the calculation of economic performance indicators such as the Economic Net Present Value (ENPV), the Economic Rate of Return (ERR) and Cost-Effective Ratios (CER). The BFI guidelines state that only projects that are economically feasible and cost-effective will be favourably considered for funding from the fiscus. Hence the importance of a socio-economic analysis that complies with the BFI requirements.

The advisory team are required to build an economic model considering all the economic costs and benefits of the Project. The objectives of such economic model are to:

- Justify fiscal support through a credible analysis of social and economic costs and benefits of the Project

- Provide information that enables the assessment of welfare changes due to the Project and estimation of the Project's impact on all segments of the society as measured by the calculation of economic performance indicators such as the ENPV, ERR and CER
- Provide a scientific method of demonstrating economic cost and benefits of the Project through a CBA to assess their economic viability across a range of options considered
- Demonstrate the distributional impact(s) in relation to the accrual of gains or losses to different groups from the implementation of the Project. A project may have differing impacts according to age, gender, ethnic group, health, skill, or location.

The above-mentioned objectives will serve as the scope of work to be undertaken by the advisory team. In carrying out the scope of work, bidders are also required to incorporate the following:

- Assumptions: Detail the assumptions used in the CBA and the method used to quantify the impacts of each option considered
- Base case: The submission needs to establish a base case, under which no intervention is implemented to address identified challenges. This is a do-nothing scenario
- Identification, categorisation, and timing of impacts: The submission needs to identify the impacts of each option under consideration, categorise the impacts as costs or benefits; and show the timing of each impact
- Monetising costs and benefits: The submission needs to show the method used to monetise the costs and benefits. A CBA does not use financial prices, but economic prices to value impacts
- Social discount rate (SDR): Given that the impact of an intervention occurs over the lifetime of the intervention, the costs and benefits of each option must be discounted using a selected SDR to bring future values into their present-day equivalent, to allow for comparison
- Determination of the net impact: The submission must sum all the economic benefits and separately, all the net economic costs. Thereafter, the economic costs must be subtracted from the economic benefits, to determine the net benefits (positive or negative) of each option
- Decision criteria: Each option must show the economic net present value ENPV, ERR and BCR. These are used to compare options to each other.

D. ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT

To assess the project in terms of the DBSA's ESSG requirements. If there are still outstanding gaps, or key risk areas, it should highlight these together with the associated measures and costs required to address them.

- Strategic Environmental and Social Assessment including strategic alternative options and selection aligned to the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs)
- Environmental Impact Assessment report as applicable (as required by country legislation) including project-based alternatives and preferred selection aligned to SDGs

- Gender mainstreaming within the project
- Environmental and Social Management Plan for construction and operational phases of the project
- Environmental and Social Management Systems for operational phases of the project.
